December 2nd, 1959.

Honorable Allen Dulles,
Central Intelligence Agency,
Washington, D. C.

Dear Allen:

I wrote you on November 4th, 1959, in regard to the American Colleges in Istanbul. I have not heard anything from you but am not discouraged as I know how extremely busy you are.

I expect to be in Washington late Thursday, December 17th, and thought that possibly I could drop into your office and see you for a few moments, or possibly have lunch with you on Monday the 21st. I shall be staying with my daughter, [REDACTED]

STAT

You could either drop me a line to my office at the above address or have your secretary pass any message along to my daughter who will transmit it to me.

Looking forward to the hope that I may see you for a few moments.

Cordially,
